Administrative Issue Resolved

A couple of weeks ago a memo from GSA /IACSE was sent out that stated that Sargent & Greenleaf's facility clearance was going to terminate on October 31, 2024 and the Model 2740B combination lock was to be removed from the Qualified Products List (QPL). I found out a few days afterward and contacted Sargent & Greenleaf for more information. I was given some information about the matter and was told that they were working to resolve the issue. They had no intention to end their facility clearance. This clearance is necessary for them to produce the Model 2740B because of it's limited use requirement.

We have been notified that the issue has been resolved by a letter from the Vice President, Government Services at Sargent & Greenleaf. The letter states, ". . . this was purely an administrative matter and not related to any aspect of our product or service quality." It goes on to state, "We are pleased to inform you that the issue has been fully resolved and the S&G 2740B has been reinstated on the QPL as of November 4, 2024. Please be assured that the temporary removal from the QPL will not impact the delivery of any current or future orders of the product."
